Introduction

In December of 1999, I was awarded a Literary Grant by the Dade Reading Council to help me accomplish the objectives set out in my grant proposal titled “Animal Story Song Time”. The project required planning and implementing of a reading program that would help students to become lifelong readers and learners. The sharing and networking of ideas was a major component of the grant. In addition to showcasing the “Animal Story Song Time” on the website, www.dadereading.com, an article describing and evaluating the funded project was included in “The Dade Dispatch” the publication sponsored by the Dade Reading Council.

Each year I make “Animal Story Song Time” part of my regular teaching. It has proved to be quite popular and fun. I have continued to enhance the project with additional materials and resources. With the help of the Media Specialist at my school, I recently compiled a list of books available at our library that incorporate music and animals. All students, parents, teachers and the general public have access to this on-line booklist. I hope you will choose to view it in order to get ideas for establish a similar service at your school site. The address is found below. <http://destiny.dadeschools.net/cataloging/servlet/presentvisualesearchdisplayform.do?l2m=Visual%20Search> . Good Luck and enjoy!

Purpose of the Program

The Animal Story Song Time program has been written in an effort to provide educators, both classroom teachers and music specialists with an innovative new way of promote reading. By linking reading with music and drama curriculum, students will be enticed to become lifelong readers and learners.

Overview as Featured in the Dade Dispatch Article, Spring 2000

Literary Grant Winners

The following articles were written by the Literary Grant winners on their creative projects and ideas that they implemented in their classrooms.

Animal Story Song Time Project

by Janet Duguay Kirsten, Claude Pepper Elementary, Music Teacher

The Animal Story Song Time Project was developed in an effort to promote reading through dramatic story telling and song singing. The funds provided by the grant were used to purchase books and puppets. Each of the story books selected was associated with a familiar children's song. It was my objective to link reading with music and drama so as to encourage the students to become lifelong readers and learners.

During the spring of 2000, I met with her kindergarten and first grade classes at Claude Pepper Elementary once a week for 30 minutes. Each story was dramatically read to the children. The books selected were all bright, colorful and had interesting drawings to capture the children's attention. The puppets were a big hit among the children. Each character made its appearance at the appropriate time in the story and acted out the staged role.

My associate teachers and I taught the children each song. Once the children learned the words, the melody was taught and reinforced through repetition. Finally, when the children had mastered the song, the puppet was used to stimulate interest and reinforce retention through exciting hands-on activities. Each animal puppet was manipulated to promote interest in the song and story. The end result proved to be extremely successful. University of Miami associate teachers Mr. Alejandro Caballero and Mr. Joshua Desrochers assisted in reading the books and manipulating the puppets while I played the corresponding tune on the keyboard. Having two teachers present the song greatly aided in making the stories come to life. The children's retention of stories and related songs was excellent. They built a strong repertoire of both.

The students of Claude Pepper Elementary would like to thank you for making this grant opportunity possible. Incentives such as Dade Reading Council Literary Grant help keep teaching innovative and learning fun.

Ms. Duguay Kirsten's associate music teacher from the University of Miami, Joshua Desrochers reads the book, "The Happy Hedgehog Band" to a kindergarten class at Claude Pepper Elementary.

University of Miami associate music teacher, Alejandro Caballero assists music teacher, Janet Duguay Kirsten in acting out the story from the book, "Cat goes Fiddle, de fe." Ms. Duguay Kirsten plays the "Barnyard Song" as the first grade children of Claude Pepper Elementary sing along. Puppets used include a cat, hen, duck, goose, sheep, pig, cow, horse, and dog.

Sample Lesson Plan

Stories with Songs and Animal Characters

This lesson is for a first grade class. This activity is presented for 30 minutes.

- I. Instructional Objective:
The teacher will guide the students to attentively focus on reading. Emphasis will center on building imagination, strengthen memory and improve singing skills. This project helps students become lifelong readers and learners making stories memorable through musical rhythm, rhyme, melody and manipulation of hands-on puppets.
- II. Behavioral Objective:
The students will build vocabulary by being able to verbally identify characters, plots, descriptors, etc. Students will sing with a pleasing voice the song that accom-panies the storybook. The characters will provide evidence of dramatic play.
- III. Materials:
 - a. Book (example: Eentsy Weentsy Spider)
 - b. Puppet (example: Black Spider Hand Puppet)
 - c. Prepared Corresponding Song (example: Eentsy Weentsy Spider)
 - d. Optional: keyboard, guitar or recording
- IV. Facilities:
Comfortable open area where all students can view the story book and have access to touching the puppets and making music.
- V. Standards (Objectives): (See attached)
 - a. National Standards for Music Education
 - b. Sunshine State Standards for Music
 - c. Sunshine State Standards for Language Arts
 - d. M-DCPS Competency Based Curriculum
- VI. Procedure:
Incorporate the “Animal Story Song Time” project as often as possible in the school year. A new animal story could be included in a lesson plan on a schedule of once a week/month over the course of the year. If possible coordinate the project to correspond with or follow a visit by the on-site Music Specialist.

Be sure to establish the proper environment conducive to story telling. Provide the setting for a particular story by providing a creative introduction. Effort should be made to try to find a personal link between the subject matter in the story to the child's experiences.

The book should have bright, colorful and interesting drawings to capture the children's attention. The story should be read to the children with dramatic flair. The puppet should make its appearance at the appropriate time in the story and act out the staged role.

After reading the book, the children should then be introduced to the related song. The teacher should demonstrate the song through careful singing and on occasion by using a quality recording. The puppet(s) should not play a role in this exercise which is much more dependent on aural rather than visual skills. Once the children learn the words and melody, allow time for reinforcement through repetition while providing keyboard accompaniment.

Finally when the children have mastered the song, the puppet should be utilized to reinforce retention through hand-on activity. The children may manipulate the puppet(s) to demonstration dramatized qualities.

Variations

Stories without Songs

Tell the story in a singing voice. Repeated sentences, or groups of words should be handled like singing a familiar phrase as in returning to the refrain (chorus) of a song.

Songs without Stories

Use your imagination to elaborate on the idea set forth in a song. Create a purpose for singing the song. Add emotion/special voices to characters mentioned.

Nursery Rhymes

Good choice for Pre-Kindergarten. Guide the students in creating a dramatization of a Nursery Rhyme. Include singing, dancing, narration as well as some simple instruments. Include costuming with props, scenery if possible.

Fairytales

Good choice for Kindergarten and 1st grade. Guide the students in creating a dramatization of a favorite fairy tale. Include singing, dancing, narration as well as some simple instruments. Include costuming with props, scenery if possible.

Poems

Good choice for older students. Guide the students in creating a dramatization of a selected poem. Include singing, dancing, narration as well as some simple instruments. Include costuming with props, scenery if possible.

Spanish Stories

Obtain books in Spanish from the media center, Spanish teachers or the students. Enlist the help of the Spanish teachers. Ask them to read the book in Spanish so that it can be audio taped. Be sure to practice telling the story in Spanish if the students are too young to read. Older students may be asked to read the story aloud to the class.

Helpful Ideas

Books

- Search for books that are already available in your school library
- Visit community libraries in search for materials
- Consider audio books and videos
- Explore the possibility of buying materials through the Media Center budget
- Consult your Media Specialist for other book ideas

Puppets

- Stuffed animals may be used instead of puppets
- Ask students to bring in stuffed animals or puppets from home
- Save money by purchasing less expensive finger puppets
- Puppets are often less expensive when sold in sets
- Make hand puppets using lunch paper bags
- Make small manipulative characters out of popsicle sticks or clothes pins
- Make simple costumes for students (rabbit ears, draw on cat whiskers)
- Shop for after Halloween costume bargains
- Illustrate key characters on board and refer to them during storytelling
- Draw animal characters on individual posters so they may be handled

Music

- Consult your Music Specialist for music resource ideas
- Use good quality recorded songs if you are insecure about your own musical abilities
- Ask your Music Specialist to record the song on an audio tape

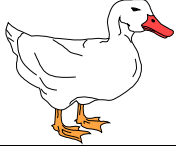

General

- Share the expense of materials with another teacher
- Use your creativity and imagination
